THE LATEST RADICAL DODGE.

The great power of the Farmers' Alliance which influential organization is fighting along Democratic lines has alarmed the Republicans and they see that unless they act quickly and decisively they will be driven from power by an overwhelming majority. They have hit upon a new organization of farmers which they vainly hope will eclipse the Farmers' Alliance. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat—a rampant Republican organ—thus outlines the plan by which it is hoped to save the Republican party:

The members are known as the Knights of Reciprocity, and the first lodge was organized a few weeks ago at Garden City, Kan. It is understood that about a dozen lodges have since been instituted in Congressmen Parker's district, in Western Kansas and Colorado, and that the order is rapidly extending. Like the Farmers' Alliance, the meetings are held in secret session, and there is an initiatory ceremony. There is no political significance in the organization adopted as the principle for any political purpose. The founders of the order, however, believe that in reciprocity lies the solution of the tariff dilemma. The members are not especially tariff reformers, but they believe in a wider extension of American trade, particularly in the Western continent. They not only favor reciprocity almost to the extent of absolute free trade with the South American and Central American republics, but they believe in the observance of reciprocity within the United States. They believe that reciprocity should be observed between labor and capital, the miner and the mine owner, the people and the railroads, the borrower and the lender of money, the employer and the employee. They propose to avoid the money, sub-treasury and other wild cat schemes of the Farmers' Alliance, but there are understood to be some points upon which they agree with the platform of the Farmers' Alliance. The new order will be introduced into the towns and cities as well as through the country districts, and if the rapid growth already observed during the three weeks of its existence is any indication for the future, the outlook is most promising. A Grand Lodge of Kansas will be established within a few weeks, probably during the holidays, and it is expected that later a Grand Lodge will be organized in Colorado.

THE WORK OF THE LEGISLATURE.

From time to time the CHRONICLE will give its readers the suggestions made by the press of the State upon the legislation needed and which ought to be enacted by the coming General Assembly. The consideration of these suggestions by the members-elect of the Legislature and the public generally will help in the direction of wisely shaping legislation. In this connection the following from the Wilson Advance is to the point:

Senator B. F. Aycock jocularly said to the editor a few days since that he hoped the newspapers of the State would give the members of the Legislature whatever advice they had to give before the meeting of the General Assembly and not wait until it adjourned to tell them what they ought to have done. This is well said. Now talk, brethren.

A GOOD IDEA.

The colored people of Detroit have started the idea of securing a separate exhibit at the World's Fair of the products of their own industry and invention, and the Plain Dealer, a newspaper published there in the interest of the negro race, prints a page of letters from prominent colored men in advocacy of the scheme.

This is a capital idea. The CHRONICLE hopes that the colored people of North Carolina will take steps to demonstrate the advancement their race has made since the war in every line of endeavor. It would be a valuable object lesson.

THE CHRONICLE extends a very cordial welcome to Rev. BAYLUS CADE, the new editor of the Progressive Farmer. He is a Christian, a thinker, a scholar and an earnest reform-Democrat. He has zeal and he has knowledge as well. He is a well-furnished editor, discreet, wise and progressive. He is quite an addition to North Carolina journalism, and will take rank with the brightest men in the ranks.

JAY GOULD, speaking of his latest railway deal says: "Actual consolidation would be a good thing, but is not yet possible under the laws." If there is to be consolidation the government must control them more fully than now, or it must own them.

According to EDWARD ATKINSON "there are two things needed in these days: 'First, for rich men to find out how poor men live, and second, for poor men to know how rich men work.'"

A CORRECTION.

In proof-reading a few departures were unfortunately made from the manuscript of Mr. JOHN R. MORRIS, in his special to the CHRONICLE, concerning the marriage of Baron Maltzahn. His pen was playful in a more compensatory manner than was apparent from our point and while the special will appear as originally written in our weekly edition we here reproduce in justice to all the following pleasantly:

"As I have intimated, Charlotte is not easily made nervous over distinguished guests. The regular Charlotte man, within proper bounds, indulges a consciousness of being present. And, as for a Charlotte girl, she is not easily surprised, and exists at an limitless distance from 'anything green.' With an ancestry backed by the revolutionary traditions of North Carolina, and conscious of an ingrafting of the best lineal aristocracy of South Carolina, she—a fervid, pulsing, delightful being—is a unique inter-state product, as beautiful as she is winsome, and not to be found elsewhere."

LEGISLATIVE SUGGESTION.

(Wilson Advance.)

That the Advance has favored a railroad Commission for years no one who has been a constant reader of this paper can for one instant doubt. That we entertained strong hopes that at last the will of the people would prevail and a commission be established when the Legislature two years ago went to Raleigh, is now a matter of ancient history. That the will of the people was disregarded and the will of the railroad companies prevailed, the defeat of the bill by the last Legislature clearly showed.

The Legislature elected last month was elected with the clear understanding that they would regard the will of the people and give us a Railroad Commission. That a large majority of the members elect propose carrying out that intention, there is no doubt in our mind. It would be a disgrace upon the State if a second time the people were betrayed by their representatives. We have no fear of such a catastrophe.

Give us a commission—the people demand it and they have a right to have their demand heeded.

ON OUR TABLE.

TIMOTHY'S QUEST.—By Kate Douglas Wiggin, author of Bird's Christmas Carol, the Story of Patsy, &c. Published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston and New York.

This is a story suitable for anybody who loves to read of the trials of dependent youth and the better side of the straight-laced New England character. There are many views of New England life—one representing it as harsh, cold and puritanical; and the other perfect, proper and not to be criticised. This little book gives the glimpse of real New Englanders who are neither too good for this world or as cold as they are painted.

HOUSEHOLD HYGIENE, by Mary Taylor Bissell, M. D. Published by N. D. C. Hodges, 47 Lafayette Place, New York.

Few women understand the sanitary arrangements of house-keeping, or the ordinary rules of hygiene. It is desirable that all women should be thoroughly informed in the department which is their special province. Many women have sought to gain the needed information but the only books to their hand are technical and intended for the use of physicians or specialists. This volume is intended to supply this need, and is the result of practical observations of a thoughtful and accomplished and progressive female doctor.

"LOVE POEMS OF THREE CENTURIES—1500-1800," compiled by Jessie F. O'Donnell. Published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, N. Y. Two volumes.

These are two of the most delightful little volumes from the Knickerbocker press. CARLYLE truly said: "A poet without love is a physical and metaphysical impossibility," and accepting that as true, these volumes are repositories of the works of great poets. They contain almost every poem on love that has been written that is worthy of preservation. No poet of reputation but has a poem in this volume, and generally it is his best and brightest creation. BURNS, ELIZABETH BROWNING, ROBERT BROWNING, LORD BYRON, CAMPBELL, COLERIDGE, COWPER, DRYDEN, HOOD, MOORE, OWEN MEREDITH, SCOTT, SHELLEY, SOUTHEY TENNYSON, WORDSWORTH, ALDRICH, PAUL H. HAYNE, OWENS, SIDNEY LANIER, LONGFELLOW, JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL, JOAQUIN MILLER, POE, AMELIE RIVES, Saxe, STEDMAN, STODDARD, BAYARD TAYLOR, TILTON, TROWBRIDGE, WALT WHITMAN, WHITTIER, ELLA WILCOX WHEELER, N. P. WILLIS SHAKESPEARE—these are the most noted names from whose works the compiler has drawn to make "a diminutive mass of precious metals."

There is one North Carolina poem in the nuggets—"Cleopatra's Soliloquy," by the late Mrs. MARY BAYARD CLARK. This was one of her best poems and is entitled to a place in the collection of beautiful poems.

Why Grover Disliked Ingalls.

(From Washington Letter.)

Mr. Cleveland entertained and enjoyed an abiding contempt for the Kansas senator, and Ingalls hated the president in return with all the intensity of his sour nature. This difference originated in Ingalls' love of gossip. He never lost an opportunity, it is said to discuss the domestic affairs of the president's household, and to pass remarks upon them. On one occasion he is reported to have made an attempt to engage Mrs. Whitney in a discussion of the president's relations with Mrs. Cleveland, when he was so severely rebuffed that he soon left the house. He never after that spoke to Mrs. Whitney.

A Thing to Remember.

(Lumberton Robesonian.)

It would be well for a Robeson county boy to remember that he lives in the biggest county in the greatest State, (all things considered) when the Legislature is not in session, in the Union, and that the aforesaid county has the biggest set of Commissioners in the country, that body having decided that the retail liquor traffic is one that a man of good moral character will not engage in and therefore it had the right to refuse to grant license, which opinion has recently been concurred in by the Supreme Courts of both the state and the United States.
